Introduction

This Data Pack provides information upon which the Resource Review has been based.

Throughout the Resource Review there are a number of summary tables with information about the number of incidents fire engines attend, their availability and their use. The data pack supports the Resource Review and provides additional data, methodologies and explanation to the summary tables within the Review.

Background

For the majority of the Resource Review, data has been used from the three years 1st April 2020 to 31st March 2023.

To provide information about fire engine availability the 12-months from 1st April 2022 to 31st March 2023 was used. Only 12-months of availability data was used as the three-year period included the restrictions that were in place during the COVID-19 pandemic and because of these restrictions On-Call firefighters were able to provide greater levels of availability to crew their fire engine. Since returning to normality and following the easing of COVID-19 restrictions, fire engine availability has returned to similar levels experienced before the pandemic. Therefore, the use of only the 12-months data in this area is more representative and gives a truer picture of the availability.

Layout

This Data Pack is laid out in the same order as the Summary Tables and as the information appears within the Resource Review.

Overarching Data

It is stated within the Resource Review that the Service attends on average 7,366 incidents a year. This is based on a total number of 22,099 incidents being attended over the three-years examined in the report between 1st April 2020 and 31st March 2023. This number is ascertained from the national Incident Recording System (IRS) which records information about all the incidents HWFRS attends. Note: Some figures use three-year average values. This can lead to small discrepancies between the sum of these averages and the total due to rounding up/down.

Callsigns

In the Resource Review the Service has referred to the fire engines by their location and staffing priority arrangement, i.e. Wyre Forest 3rd Fire Engine. All HWFRS fire engines have a designated callsign. A fire engine's callsign is the way the Service identifies the fire engines and is used in radio communications between the fire engines and Fire Control. In this Data Pack the Service has used both methods of identifying the fire engines. Below is a table to provide clarity of the fire engine location and its callsign. This table does not include the specialist appliances that are based at a number of the fire stations.

Summary Tables and their Evidence

Average incident details of all 41 fire engines

The first table in this pack, which is not included in the Resource Review but is included here for context, shows a summary of the data considered in the initial report which identified the nine most under-utilised fire engines which then required further analysis. This table shows the total number of incidents, the number of incidents both on and off their own station area for all 41 fire engines. Each criteria is further broken down into day and night, for comparison between these two time periods.

Note; The average number of attendances over three years is 9036, this is not the same as the average number of incidents which is 7366 as some incidents have more than one fire engine attending.

Average availability, percentage of incidents not used, and percentage of overall incidents attended of all fire engines

The second table in this data pack, which is not included in the Resource Review but is included here for context, shows average fire engine availability, average percentage of time a fire engine is not used at an incident and the percentage of all incidents each fire engine attended. Availability percentage gives an idea as to how much of the time a fire engine was available to attend incidents. As discussed previously, fire engine availability was calculated on the last financial year only, while other calculations use an average of the last three years. In the table below Wyre Forest 4th fire engine has an average availability over the last financial year of 33.93%, which can be further broken down into 29.56% during the day and 37.63% available at night.

A fire engine was considered to be 'not used' at an incident if it attended the incident for less than 20 minutes. This was calculated by looking at the difference between the time the fire engine arrived at the incident and the time it was available for other incidents.

The number of attendances as a percentage of total incidents gives an idea as to how many of the total incidents that the Service attends that each fire engine goes to. The least busy fire engine attends 0.31% of the total incidents whereas the busiest fire engine attends 13.91% of the total incidents.

Figure 2 - Incidents within each Attendance Performance Measure (APM) Time Zone

The Attendance Performance Measure (APM) was introduced on 1st April 2023, so there is only six-months of data. Therefore, the table below shows the number of incidents examined within each time response area between April 2023 and September 2023.

Time Response Area	Number of incidents examined	% of Total
10 minutes	955	71%
15 minutes	335	25%
20 minutes	60	4%
Grand Total	1,350	100%

The data below was used to calculate the number of incidents in each time response area.

Page 21 - Incident numbers by day and by night

The table below shows the total attendances and the total incidents the Service has attended over the last three years. The total attendances are more than the total incidents as more than one fire engine attends some of our incidents. The Service is 68% busier during the day than it is at night.

	Total attendances by any fire engine	Total incidents by any fire engine
Day	17,012	13,803
Night	10,097	8,296
Total	27,109	22,099
How many more in the day than at night?	6,915	5,507
How much more in the day than at night?	68%	66%

Figure 4 in the Resource Review shows the annual average number of incidents each On-Call fire engine attended between 1st April 2020 - 31st March 2023. These averages are devised from the total numbers over the three-year period. For example, a total of 1231 incidents were attended by all eight fire engines over the three-years. This is divided by the three years to get an annual average, which is more reflective of the fire engine's activity, providing an average of 410 incidents each year. This is then broken down into the number of incidents within their own station ground and outside their station ground. Figure 4 in the report shows the average number of annual incidents for each of the eight fire engines. Figure 4 also shows how many incidents each of the eight fire engines attended where they were the first or only fire engine to attend and where they were a supporting fire engine. Wyre Forest 3rd Fire Engine's figures are included to provide comparison and information for a change in its cover model.

The table below was used to calculate the order of arrival for each incident for each callsign and therefore whether it was the first fire engine to arrive, the only fire engine to attend, and whether it was a supporting fire engine.

To produce Figure 5, every incident that the affected fire engines attended over the three-year period was extracted. Each incident was examined to assess how many fire engines attended and the order of arrival of each fire engine at each incident.

During the analysis the annual average of 220 incidents the eight fire engines attended as the first or only fire engine was examined. The Service looked at how many times another fire engine was available on the station and whether the crew could have used this other fire engine, when the incident was in their own fire station area. These incidents were then subject to even further analysis. Attendances to automatic fire alarms were removed from the 220, as these incidents do not require an emergency response, and these incidents are not scrutinised in the Attendance Performance Measure.

This detailed analysis shows that two of the eight fire engines did not attend any incidents over the three-year period where there was not another fire engine available at their fire station. This is why there is no data available for these two fire engines in Figure 5. For the other fire engines, they attended 29 incidents on average per year where there was no other fire engine available to attend from their fire station. In all these cases another fire engine would have been sent to the incident if these six had not been available at the time.

Figure 5 in the report shows the annual average number of incidents attended by each fire engine as the first or only fire engine following the further analysis described above. The data below shows the 661 incidents over the three years (220 on average per year) which was used as a starting point for the above methodology.

based on the amount of time it spent at the incident. The information provided is an annual average based on data from the three-year period 1st April 2020 - 31st March 2023.

To determine if a fire engine was part of the initial response, the time difference between when the first fire engine was mobilised and the time when each of eight fire engines was mobilised was calculated for each incident. If the difference was five minutes or less, it was deemed to have been part of the initial response. Conversely if one of the eight fire engines was mobilised more than five minutes after the first fire engine, this was deemed to be part of a 'Make Up' response. A fire engine was considered to be 'not used' at an incident if it was at the incident for less than 20 minutes. The table below was used to calculate the average time spent at the incident and also to determine the percentage of times a fire engine was not used at an incident.

The Resource Review considers Service Resilience and how often all fire engines are used, and the support it provides and received from neighbouring Fire and Rescue Services.

In the last three years HWFRS has attended an average of 54 incidents for our neighbouring Services. Conversely those neighbouring Services have attended and supported at an average of 141 incidents for HWFRS.

Figure 9 - Response Times and Impact on Other Fire Engines

Figure 9 in the Resource Review shows a comparison of the original and potential average response times for the 86 incidents attended as the first or only fire engine between 1 April 2020 – 31 March 2023. In all cases the response time is the travel time plus the standard time allowed for the crew to leave the station. For an On-Call crew this is six minutes and for a Wholetime crew this is one and a half minutes. The Wyre Forest 4th Fire Engine has ten minutes. The Wyre Forest 3rd Fire Engine has been modelled for alternative day-time cover only.

Several databases and mapping software were used to compare their travel time to the incident. Alternative fire engines were plotted from their home fire station as this would be the worst-case scenario for an alternative fire engine to have to travel from.

Once alternative fire engines were identified, their locations were plotted on a map and their travel time to the incident was estimated. This was then compared to the actual travel time that the original fire engine took. An average travel time for each alternative fire engine and the average change in response time from the original fire engine was calculated.

The table below shows times for the original fire engine and those modelled for an alternative fire engine, and was used to create Figure 9. Wyre Forest 3rd fire engine was modelled for day-time cover only.

There are some limitations with this approach. The narrative log only shows a certain number of nearest available vehicles. This includes officer's cars, special vehicles and fire engines from neighbouring fire and rescue services. All of which have been excluded from being picked as an alternative fire engine in this analysis. This means that on occasions, there are not any alternative HWFRS fire engines available in this list to use for this analysis. When this happens,  appears in the table.

As discussed in the Resource Review, to explore the direct impact of the removal of the eight fire engines this review has looked at the 29 incidents per year on average that they attended as the first or only fire engine, (a total of 86 incidents over the three-year period, 1 April 2020 – 31 March 2023). Two incidents were removed from the analysis due to system failures in recording the timings for those fire engines.

The table below shows the individual incident details for the deeper analysis for the 86 incidents over three years. This data was used to calculate the average times in Figure 9.

As mentioned previously, for some of the 86 incidents where the eight fire engines were the first to arrive as part of the initial response, the alternative fire engine was in fact the second fire engine that was already on the way to the incident. The rest of the 86 incidents were calculated as mentioned above. These two sets of data were combined and used to estimate the changes in response times in Figure 9 and to understand that for the 86 incidents that occurred over the three years (average 29 incidents per year) there would be an estimated six minute and 35 second increase in response time.

Incidents across all three years (1st April 2020 – 31st March 2023) - alternative fire engines

The table below shows what the increase in the number of incidents attended would have been for the alternative fire engines for all three years, were the eight fire engines removed over this period. It also shows the average increase in the response time had they attended instead of the eight fire engines, where this is a minus this is because the mapping software predicted a faster response time than the mobilising system had in Fire Control.

This table shows each of the individual 1,231 incidents that the eight fire engines attended, their response time and the alternative fire engine and estimated response time had they not been available. The final column shows the difference between the two response times.

Recruitment and Retention of On-Call Firefighters

Figure 10 in the Resource Review is a graph that illustrates the First On-call Availability over the last seven years. This data has been published previously as part of the Quarterly Performance Report and presented to the Policy and Resources Committee. The table below was used to create the graph.

| Year	First On-call Availability
2016-17	91.80%
2017-18	89.60%
2018-19	84.75%
2019-20	87.31%
2020-21	91.66%
2021-22	85.90%
2022-23	81.63%

For this report, the Service has used a system called the Dynamic Cover Tool (DCT) to determine the effects of removing the eight fire engines on overall risk relating to Building Fires Coverage when the first fire engine attends. Fire engines in the maps below are depicted as circles, the colour of these circles shows the status of the fire engine.

The size of the circles is dependent on how significantly the fire engine is contributing (or potentially contributing) to the coverage of potential risk. Further details can be found in the table below. As the DCT only considers the incident type "Building Fires", the picture of risk it produces may not be true a true reflection of coverage of risk as a whole. For example, fire engines attend Road Traffic Collisions (RTCs), but this incident type is not yet included within the risk modelling in DCT.

	Large Available Resource (Green or Yellow) This is contributing significantly to the coverage of risk. If the vehicle was removed, coverage would deteriorate significantly (relative to other resources).
	Small Available Resource (Green or Yellow) This is not contributing significantly to the coverage of risk. If the vehicle was removed, coverage would not deteriorate significantly (relative to other vehicles). These resources may be good candidates to make potential standby moves.
	Large Empty Station (Red) If an available resource was located here, it would contribute significantly to the coverage of risk. This station may be a good candidate to receive a potential standby move.
	Small Empty Station (Red) If an available resource was located here, it would not contribute significantly to the coverage of risk.
	Unavailable vehicle (Grey) These do not have a size associated with them. They are unavailable so do not contribute to covering risk. The Resource can be made hypothetically available in the DCT, upon which its size will change depending on the coverage it would provide.

Along with the size of the circles, the background colour helps the user identify gaps in cover. The background colour of the display is a combination of expected response time and density of demand/risk based of five years' worth of historic data.

In short – The Service would aim to have as little yellow to red as possible as these are the areas suffering the most from the current availability.
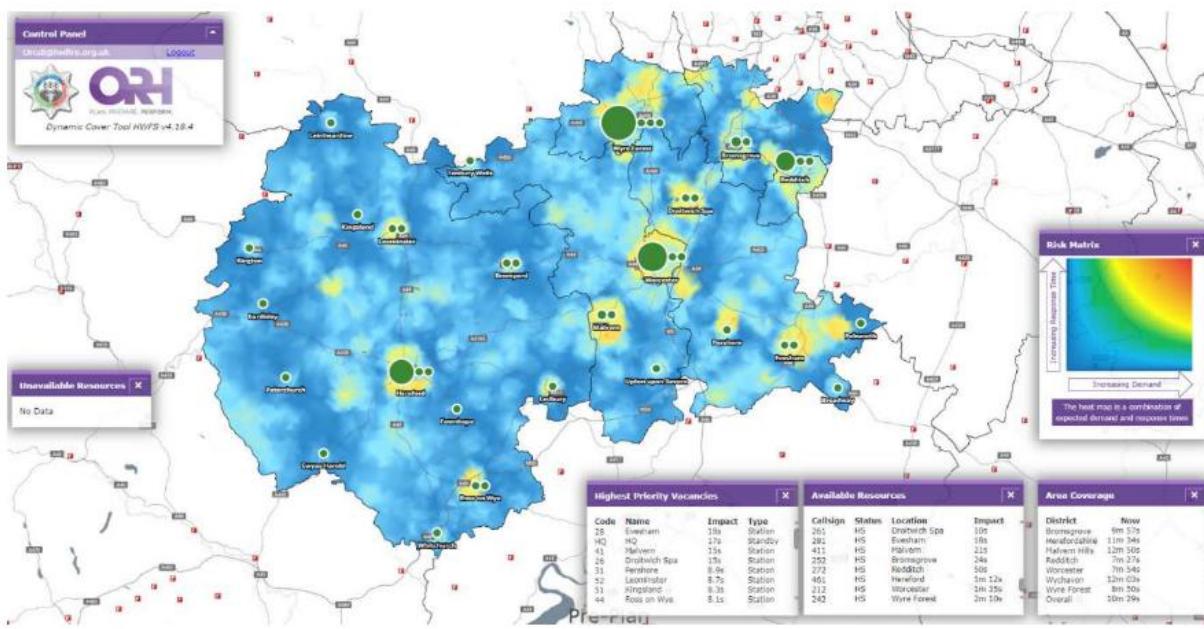

To study the impact of the removal of fire engines, the Service must first understand how the Service's coverage looks with all fire engines available. However, it must be understood that due to the nature of the On-Call Duty System full availability of all fire engines is rarely achieved.

Therefore, the first two maps below (Full Availability – Day, and Full Availability – Night) show what the cover of fire engines looks like if all fire engines were available based on the current crewing models in use in HWFRS.

Full Availability – Day

Full Availability – Night

The Full Cover – Day and Full Cover – Night maps show a slight difference based on changes in crewing model at the three Day-Crewing fire stations, which results in an increase in turnout times overnight at these three stations.

Using the DCT we can therefore model the fire cover if the eight fire engines proposed in this review were removed. The next two maps show what that change in coverage would look like by both day and night. The Service can then compare the Full Cover Maps with the Eight Fire Engines Removed maps to compare what changes in risk there may be if the eight fire engines were to be removed. As we are not proposing to remove any first crewed fire engines that risk does not vary between the two sets of maps.

Eight Fire Engines Removed - Day (07:00-18:59)

Eight Fire Engines Removed – Night (19:00 – 06:59)
